OLIE JAMES' BLUFF WAS A SUCCESS

Why Congressman Hughes Withdraw the Powers Relief Bill.

Washington, D. C., April 26.—The story of how Representative Hughes, of West Virginia, happened to change his mind about the Powers Relief Bill and withdrew his support from that measure, as introduced, has just come to light. Mr. Hughes, formerly of Kentucky and once a member of the legislature, is not a lawyer. The bill was drawn by John W. Langley of Kentucky, who hoped to create sympathy for Powers. Representative James read the bill and went to Hughes.

"Did you know," said James, "that you have fathered a bill under which any criminal or any defendant in a civil suit could walk out of a state court upon his own motion?"

Mr. Hughes didn't know much about the bill and was not strong on the Federal Constitution.

"Under that bill," exclaimed Mr. James, "a negro in a Southern state might commit assault and on his unsupported affidavit go into a Federal court for trial. Corporations could take all suits for damages, even for the killing of cows, out of the state courts."

"If you don't get out from under that bill quickly somebody will go out in your district and tell it on you, and you will not get enough ballots to win a shotgun."

Mr. Hughes became as panic stricken as a steer in a stampede and hurried to withdraw the bill. He now offers another and milder one. It seems that W. C. Owens does not know exactly what bill he has to argue before the Judiciary Committee, but he is coming to Washington to make his customary Powers speech.

Overstocked with Missionaries.

Kansas City, April 30.—A Brahmo-missionary to America, Marayan Krishna, filling the pulpit of All Souls Church Episcopal, in this city, by invitation, said last evening in the course of a talk:

We're overstocked with Christian missionaries. Ninety per cent of those we have are senseless. Furthermore, we don't want your religion or your Holy Book. We have a religion of our own than we know what to do with, a surplus that could like to export. So I pray Americans keep your mission at home. If you want to Christians send me some men qualified to teach, philosophers who know own scripture. Until then the four books of philosophy, is enough for us.

On these remarks some members of the congregation left the assembly and the Rev. Charles Ferguson, Marayan Krishna's agent.

Powers' Eyesight Falling.

Cincinnati, Ky., April 28.—Caleb Powers, 70, spent several hours in Cincinnati this afternoon. Accompanied by U. S. Marshal Emmett, he visited an oculist. His eyes are said to be failing. It is his first visit to Cincinnati in 10 years.

He took in the sights of interest, impressing those on, but who did not recognize him. He visited the Stage Coach Inn, held an impromptu meeting in the center of a group of his old habits. He talked a great deal, except responding to questions.

Card of Thanks.

Through the columns of the paper I express our heartfelt thanks to our dear friends and neighbors, kind and faithful assistants during the sickness of our precious little babe, Ollie James' Hughes & wife.

Foundations Sink.

Chicago, April 30.—Chicago's City Hall has sunk to such an extent since the completion of the excavation for the adjoining new county building that it was found necessary yesterday to rope in the entrances to prevent pedestrians from being killed by the falling sections of coping and cornices. At the south end of the building, on Washington street, the foundations have sunk several inches, while the entire building has attained a list in the direction of the hole which the new building will cover.

Yesterday ominous shivers and groans ran through the building and with many snaps and groans cracks appeared within and without. Hailocks appeared in the board floors and desks assumed angles, the floor tilting tilted and the dirt emerged from crevices where it had lain undisturbed for many years. Skylights doubled and plastering fell from the walls and ceiling. During the day several pieces of stone fell from the walls and two employees narrowly escaped being killed, as they were entering the building.

Free Garden Seeds.

Washington, D. C., April 26.—A party line division on the question of free garden seeds seems probably when the Agricultural Bill is reached. By sections the amendment to reinstate the free seed clause is offered. This will probably take place tomorrow. If the House divides on party lines the distribution of free seed will of course be at an end.

When the amendment is offered Mr. Foster, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, will rule it out on a point of order, and an appeal from the ruling will result in a test vote.

The Republicans have made the abolition of free seeds a party measure, and at this session there has been little difficulty in putting a party measure through the House. The only chance for the continuation of the "Farmers' Graft" is that Republicans from close country districts may be afraid to oppose it.

Money is Safe.

San Francisco, April 28.—All of San Francisco's thirty-four banks, twenty-two commercial and twelve savings, will be located within an area of the burned district. Inspection has revealed the fact that the vaults in every instance remain intact, but with probably two or three exceptions the fine bank buildings were utterly destroyed. According to the statement filed by these banks with the Bank Commissioner Jan. 1, the value of the buildings aggregated $6,055,032.

Asks to Be Relieved.

Smithland, Ky., April 30.—In the county court today the United States Fidelity and Guarantee company made a motion to be relieved as surety on the bond of W. B. Bishop, the Republican sheriff of this county. The motion will be heard May 12th. This action is supposed to be the outgrowth of the indictment which was recently returned against Bishop for criminal libel.

Victim of Consumption.

Alex. E. Elder died at his home in the Chapel Hill neighborhood last Thursday at 1 o'clock, after a long illness of consumption. He was about forty years of age and a member of the Methodist church. He is survived by a wife and four children.

High Grade Fertilizers.

If the fertilizer that you have been using has failed to make tobacco run up to seed too quick, failed to give it weight and body or costs too much money, then you have not been using Virginia-Carolina brands, and you should give them a trial.

DOCTOR M'CORMACK

Will Lecture at the School House Monday May 7th.

Dr. J. N. McCormack, Chairman of the American Medical Association will lecture at the School Auditorium Marion, Monday, May 7, on the subject of "Things about Doctors, which Doctors and Other People ought to Know."

Lawyers, doctors, preachers, teachers, farmers, druggists, business men, and especially the ladies are invited to attend.

Dr. McCormack's lecture will not be a dry, technical talk, but one that everybody will understand and be interested in. The meeting is for benefit of each individual in the county and it will be to your interest to hear him.

Life Saved.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 1.—Imprisoned in a compartment of the partially constructed tunnel under the river, through a break in which water was pouring, John Slater stood for two hours yesterday watching the water rise slowly until it threatened to engulf him. When at last he was rescued he was a maniac, his mind having given way from fright. Peering through a bulls-eye in the compartment, his companions saw him in his plight and for a long time were unable to help him.

Leads from the fire boat were let down into the tunnel, and the engines were worked at a furious rate, to pump out the water while the rescue work went on.

In spite of everything that could be done the water rose steadily about Slater's waist, to his breast, to his armpits, and finally to his neck. Fifteen minutes later he would have been drowned. Barely in time to prevent this, however, the firemen succeeded in opening the door, and took Slater, insane and benumbed, with cold, to a hospital.

Pettillo—Sullenger.

Mr. W. N. Pettillo drove over to Mr. W. B. Sullenger's April 29th, and took his eldest daughter home and went to Liberty Grove and got married. Miss Lee was the hand somest and most beloved daughter, and we heartily congratulate Nick on winning the heart and hand of such a bright and affectionate girl. She has for the last seven and a half years kept house for her father, brother, and sisters. We wish her a bright future.

The Princeton District Conference.

This body convened in our city last week, beginning Tuesday, at 9:30 a. m., and closing Thursday afternoon.

All the pastors save three, and a fair representation of the laity of the district were present and participated in the work of the conference. The sessions were harmonious and profitable and all seemed in good spirits and hopeful for the outlook of the work in the district.

Rev. M. E. Campbell, of the Anti-Saloon League, and Geo. E. Foskett, missionary treasurer of the conference, were present and addressed the conference. Resolutions of thanks to the people of Marion for kindness and hospitality were heartily adopted. We thank the conference for its sessions and hope it will soon meet with us again.

The next session is to be held at Eddyville. H. A. Haynes, H. C. Cobb, Dr. J. A. Aiken, and J. M. Tolley were elected delegates to the annual conference to be held at Central City in September.

Station Burns.

The Illinois Central passenger station at Barlow, Ballard county, was entirely destroyed by fire Friday night, the origin of which was not known at the local dispatcher's office today.

The building was a frame structure two stories high. The agent, J. A. Hughes, lived in the second story, and he lost all of his household effects and it is reported that he and his wife had a narrow escape.

The loss on the building is about $1500 and Mr. Hughes' loss is $500. He had no insurance. The Illinois Central carries its own insurance, having a fund to which each year is appropriated what it would cost to carry insurance.—Pad. News-Democrat.

Can't Keep Crittenden Boys Down.

Among the students from Crittenden county attending the Louisville Medical College is Mr. Vernon Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fox, of Emmens neighborhood. Though young in the second year of the course, young Fox was last winter appointed assistant demonstrator of anatomy and performed its duties so well that his class presented him with a complete and very handsome physician's outfit.

Be Not Deceived.

Livingston Banner: The misled Democrats of the county should begin to think a bit, if they have not already. Better late than never. "Libel" is the word that expresses the full character of the campaign in which they were honestly misled.

They were not and are not to be blamed for any action wherein they were honestly misled, except that they should have investigated when they had a chance. "Libel", did we say? Yes, self-confessed libel from self-confessed libelers. Let us sound the warning to all: "Come out from among them; be ye not deceived."

Tennessee Central.

Nashville, Tenn., April 28.—Suit was entered today in the chancery court by George W. Sweeney and Dr. H. T. Campbell as taxpayers, asking an injunction against the mayor and the city council and the Tennessee Central railroad, to prevent the payment of a million dollar subsidy to the Tennessee Central voted by the city council in 1903. The allegations in the bill are that the terms of the contract under which the subsidy was voted have not been complied with by the Tennessee Central railroad.

When the Tennessee Central was constructed the city of Nashville appropriated a subsidy of $1,000,000 to the company on condition that the road would remain independent of the Louisville and Nashville.

WANTED:—100 boys 16 to 20 years old. Good wages. For further information inquire at Evansville Glass Company, Evansville, Ind.

Dr. Geo. W. Stone, graduate optician. Glasses scientifically fitted. Office at Stewart's photograph gallery, Marion, Ky.

Secretary of State Henry McChesney, of Frankfort, was in Marion several days last week the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McChesney.

The people of Marion will be glad to learn that Prof. Chas. Evans has been re-employed as Superintendent of schools at Ardmore, I. T., with an increase of salary of $600.

Did you know that there is nearly as much Virginia Carolina fertilizer used as all other brands put together? Ask us why; it is our business to know. Hicklin Bros. & Wheeler.

Sun Bros. circens will show in Marion, Tuesday, May 15. This show was in Marion last June and is a good clean show, not being infested with the fakirs and gamblers that usually follow a circens.

Pleasing the people is a trade with the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette, and their program contains lots of fun of a refined nature as well as a wealth of fine music. Hear them May 9th.

Next Saturday, May 5, an election will be held in the Marion graded school building for the purpose of electing two trustees for terms of three years in the Marion graded common school district No. 27.

Prospects are fine for a large attendance at the summer normal. Many have written that they are coming. That all necessary arrangements may be made Prof. Kee would like to know at once if you intend coming.

New Deal Wanted.

Benton Democrat: The Democrats of West Kentucky are demanding that this section of the state have the next Governor, and we think we have the right to be heard in this matter.

We know that we have a man on whom the democrats of the whole state can unite. And we would again urge upon our leaders that it is necessary to have a united democracy, if we are to retain control of the state government. And we wish to reiterate that we think it is absolutely essential to the material interest of Kentucky and every other Southern state that the democratic party should govern. But the people are getting very tired of boss rule, and are demanding the right to select their own candidates. West Kentucky is the section that gives the democratic majorities in all state elections, and we have a man who has held aloof from all factional party fights. He can not be claimed as a machine democrat; neither can he be claimed as an anti-machine democrat. He is just simply a clean, straight democrat, whom everybody in the state knows and honors. He would make an ideal Governor, and under his administration there would be no "power behind the throne" dictating what shall be done and what shall not be done.

It is hardly necessary to say that the man who fills to perfection the foregoing description is Ollie M. James, the big Congressman from the First district.

IRON HILL.

Mrs. Price Cain, of Charleston, Mo., is visiting relatives in this section.

James F. Thomas visited his mother in Tennessee last week, who is dangerously ill.

THE KINGS OF ENGLAND

Since William the Conqueror and a Few Interesting Facts About Them

The kings of England, since the time of William the Conqueror, display many different phases of character. Often, as in the case of the Stuarts, the members of the same house had some characteristics in common, and we can best understand them by a study of the different houses as well as of each monarch individually. The history of England has been many times greatly influenced by the relationship of the king to some foreign sovereign. Thus we see that it is important that we should become acquainted with these relationships.

William the Conqueror, the first of the Norman kings, ruled from 1066 until 1087. He was a stern, harsh man and was often very cruel yet possessed great ability and was doubtless the possible ruler for times. His most important friend in relation was Baldwin, Count of Flanders, his father-in-law. William succeeded on his death by his second son, William Rufus. He was callous, selfish and false of heart, and proved to be worse than his father had been. His eldest brother, Robert, was ruler of Normandy at the same time. In 1100 William the II was mysteriously killed while hunting in the New Forest. His younger brother, Henry, followed him up in the throne. He was noted for his learning and was called "Baudouine" or the scholar. He had many traits of character, however, which were far from admirable. He was avaricious, revengeful, and so false that his word could never be depended upon. He was married first to Matilda, a daughter of the King of Scotland, and when she died he took Alice, the Pope's niece, for his wife. Her daughter Matilda was married first to Henry of Germany and after his death to Geoffrey Plantagenet. Henry ruled until his death in 1135.

He left the kingdom to Matilda, who enjoyed the honor only a few months when Stephen Count of Blois, grandson of William the Conqueror, usurped the throne. He ruled for twenty-nine years and was a very good king, considering the times in which he lived. In 1154, with his death the Norman line of kings ended and the Plantagenets became the ruling house.

Henry Plantagenet, son of Geoffrey and Matilda, quietly succeeded Stephen. Although he had many faults he was in most respects a good ruler and beloved by his subjects. His wife was Eleanore of Aquitaine. He married his eldest son Henry to the Princess Margaret of France.

Henry died in 1189, having ruled thirty-five years. His eldest living son, Richard Cour de Leon, now became king. He was a strong and restless man and liked nothing better than fighting. He married a French lady, Berengaria. He was always a fearless soldier and was killed in a battle at Limoges in 1199. The next ruler was his brother John.

He possessed great genius in war and had all the cleverness, good humor, and social charm which distinguished his house. But he was cruel, mean, unjust and cowardly, which last fault the English people could never forgive. He died in 1216.

He was succeeded by his son John III., who ruled for fifty-six years. He was a feeble minded and unimportant monarch. His brother Richard was king of the Romans at this time.

In 1212 Henry died and his son Edward I. was pronounced king. His sister Margaret was the wife of Alexander III. of Scotland and he himself was married to Eleanore of Castile. He was strong and energetic, and had skill both in military affairs and civil government. He died in 1272, after a reign of thirty-five years. Next came his son Edward II. He was brave enough and not cruel, but he was headstrong and lacked wisdom. He married Isabel, daughter of the king of France. He reigned for twenty years, and was assassinated in 1327. His son was the next monarch; he was not only brave but wise as well, and gave to England the best government she had had in many years. His wife was Philippa of Hainault, he ruled fifty years, dying in 1357.

Richard II., his son, then only 10 years of age, succeeded him. The child was brought up in the midst of flattering courtiers and it is no wonder that he lacked strength of character and was but a weak ruler. His wife was Anne of Bohemia; he was the last of the house of Plantagenet and when he died in 1399 his cousin Henry, the first of the line of Lancaster, took the throne.

He had no legal right as king, however. Taking into consideration the fact that he was an usurper and made some very bad laws, he was as good as the average ruler of his time. In 1413 he died and his son Henry V became king; he was a brave man and a famous soldier; he took Catherine, daughter of Charles VI. of France as his queen; he was an excellent king and had many good qualities; he ruled for only ten years. The next ruler was Henry VI., son of the former king; he was a weak ruler and was largely dominated by his wife, Margaret of Anjou. The house of Lancaster ended with his death in 1461.

Edward IV., the first of the house of York, succeeded Henry. He was a brave soldier, but was idle, voluptuous and often very tyrannical. He married an English lady, Elizabeth Woodville, he died in 1483, and his eldest son, Edward V., thirteen years of age, became king. He ruled for only a few months when he was killed by his uncle Richard, Duke of Gloucester, who then became king Richard III. He was a wicked man capable of any crime, as the murder of his little nephew shows. He ruled only two years and was killed at the battle of Bosworth Field in 1485 and with him ended the house of York.

The Tudors now assumed leadership of affairs in England. The first sovereign of this house was Henry VII. who ruled twenty-four years; he married the Princess Elizabeth of York, daughter of Edward IV. He was avaricious and was often a despotic ruler. He married his daughter Margaret to James, king of Scotland and his son Arthur to the Spanish Infanta Catharine, but Arthur died in a very short time and Catharine was married to her late husband's brother Henry. Henry VII. died in 1509, and was succeeded by his son, Henry VIII., who was a very bad ruler, he was divorced from his first wife and married successively Anna Boleyn, Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves, Catharine Howard and Catharine Parr, he died in 1547, leaving three children, Edward, Mary and Elizabeth, the former succeeded him; he ruled only six years and died at the age of sixteen. His sister Mary Tudor was the next ruler.

She was a very devout Catholic and persecuted the Protestants cruelly, thus gaining the name "Bloody Mary." She married Philip the II. of Spain, son of Catharine V. She ruled for about five years. The next ruler was one of the greatest England ever had—queen Elizabeth, she had the greatest genius for ruling, but despite her many good qualities she had grave faults, she was the greatest liar in all England and was vain and capricious, her glorious reign lasted for forty-five years. Elizabeth left no direct heir to the crown but was succeeded by James VI. of Scotland, son of her cousin Mary, Queen of Scots.

He was the first of the house of Stewart, he had very exalted notions about the Divine Right of Kings; he thought himself as wise as Solomon, and he did possess a sort of cunning which resembled wisdom; he reigned until 1625. He was succeeded by his son Charles I., who was married to Henrietta Maria of France; his notion of the Divine Right of Kings was even more foolish than those of his father; he suffered for it however for he was put to death by his Parliament in 1649. Oliver Cromwell then assumed the government, but as neither he nor his son and successor, Richard, were kings we will pass on to Charles II., the first of the Stuarts after the Restoration; he was the oldest son of Charles I. and was even more despot than his father; he was a very bad monarch indeed and England was well rid of him; his wife was Catherine of Portugal; he was succeeded by his brother James, Duke of York, in 1685. James II. was a Catholic and a very disagreeable and unpopular king; he was so bad that he was deposed after a reign of only three years. The people then placed his daughter Mary and her husband William of Orange on the throne; he was a brave and patriotic prince and a man of remarkable abilities. William and Mary ruled together for five years and after the death of the latter in 1694, William ruled alone for eight years; his sister-in-law, Anne, the wife of Prince George of Denmark, now became queen. She was a wise and just ruler and was called "Good Queen Anne." When she died in 1685 Victoria, daughter of the Duke of Kent and granddaughter of George III., became the ruler of England. She was great and good in every respect, and did much to build up the government of England. She died in 1701 and was succeeded by her son, Edward VII., the present ruler. His foreign relations were not so good as his nephew and the Emperor of Austria; his wife's nephew and the Emperor's son, his daughter is Queen of Norway and the King of Greece; his brother-in-law, another son of Queen Anne, will soon be King of Spain.

SCIATICA CURED AFTER TWENTY YEARS OF TORTURE.

For more than twenty years M. B. Massey, of 3722 Clinton St., Minneapolis, Minn., was tormented by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. No one gave him any permanent relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that liniment relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has effected a permanent cure. It troubled with sciatica or rheumatism; why not try a 25-cent bottle of Pain Balm and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS' TRAINING CLASS

LESSON XXVII.

There is no Sunday School lesson in this week's readings.

DAIY MANNA.

Sunday, May 6. Effects of Christ's work, Lk. 12:49-59.
Monday, May 7. Necessity of repentance, Lk. 13:1-5.
Tuesday, May 8. Parable of the barren fig tree, Lk. 13:6-9.
Wednesday, May 9. The infirm woman healed, Lk. 13:10-17.
Thursday, May 10. Parable of the mustard seed, Lk. 13:18, 19.
Friday, May 11. Parable of the leaven, Lk. 13:20, 21.
Saturday, May 12. Journeying toward Jerusalem, Lk. 13:22.

HELPS TO STUDY.

In Luke 12:49, 50 we have a striking revelation of the self-consciousness of Jesus. "I came to cast fire," is a reference to the division and suffering which a devotion to his teaching might cause. "I have baptism," etc. Jesus seems always, but especially after his break with the Pharisees, to have lived in full consciousness of his approaching death. Nothing is more characteristic of Jesus than his clear perception of realities, and he could not fail to see that devotion to himself must often result in the severing of family ties. (Mt. 10:37, 19:29.)

In vs. 54-56 Jesus appeals to men to use the same insight in regard to the kingdom of God and his own teaching that they are accustomed to use in forecasting the weather or in avoiding lawsuits. In vs. 57, 59 is a plea for the reasonableness of his teaching of love and reconciliation in the light of experience in oriental courts.

Lk. 13:1-5 teaches that exceptional suffering is no proof of exceptional sinfulness. Here, as in Jno. 9:2, 3, Jesus distinctly opposes the opinion, current in his time (and ours as well) that sickness and misfortune are to be traced directly to an individual's sin. His position is rather that all men need to repent from sinfulness that is something more than a delusion, and that the peculiar suffering of any particular man must be referred and providential order of affairs.

THE JEWISH SANHEDRIN.

The Jewish Sanhedrin or, High Council, was the highest national and indigenous court in the country. We meet with the Greek word synedrion, from which the word Sanhedrin is transliterated, elsewhere, especially as a designation for the minor Jewish councils in particular localities, and it is very probable that Jesus refers to such a council in his Sermon on the Mount (Mt. 5:22), and in his instructions to his disciples. (Mt. 10:17, Mk. 13:9.) In the smaller towns Josephus intimates that seven men formed the proper number to constitute one of these local courts. In cities with a population of at least 120 men, the council, or lower Sanhedrin was formed of 23 persons. These councils were appointed by the Greek Sanhedrin at Jerusalem. Minor ecclesiastical and strictly Jewish causes were within their special cognizance.

But the High Council at Jerusalem was of far greater importance than those provincial centers of authority. The origin of it was traced back to Moses, who, on the march through the wilderness, appointed by divine command 70 "elders of the people" as a council to assist him in the government of the tribes. (Num. 11:19.)

After the return from the exile this institution, which for a long time had necessarily fallen into disuse, was reorganized by Ezra, but there is no trace of it after that for a long period of history. Not till about B. C. 200 do we meet with an assembly at all similar to the council of seventy.

In the time of Pompey, and afterwards in that of Julius Caesar, the name Sanhedrin appears. Herod once had to defend himself before a court of this title. In the time of Jesus it is often mentioned under the same name, and in the Acts of the Apostles it is styled the "council of the elders." (Acts 5:21, 22:5.) This most important national tribunal existed under varying fortunes—sometimes freer, sometimes more repressed—as long as the Jews formed a nation. In the common ruin of the people, in the year A. D. 70, the High Council also came to an end.

The office of president of the Sanhedrin, according to the evidence of the New Testament (Mt. 26:57, Acts 5:17) which is confirmed by that of Josephus, belonged always to the High Priest.

At first the Sanhedrin possessed the supreme spiritual and secular jurisdiction over the people. In the days of Jesus its functions embraced all judicial decisions and all regulations of government, which were neither left to the courts of lower rank on the one hand, nor reserved for the Roman procurators on the other. Especially it was the duty of the Council to watch over genealogies, so as to guard the purity of the hereditary priesthood; to superintend the forms and ritual of worship; to make calculations for the calendar; to adjust the solar year with the lunar months; to fix the dates for the festivals; to decide matrimonial cases; to punish transgressors of the law and false prophets; and even to exercise judicial control over the chief priests. The right of inflicting capital punishment, or to speak more exactly, the confirmation and execution of its own death sentences, was taken from the National Council and reserved for the Roman Procurator. (Ico. 18:31.) When we read of the stoning of Stephen by the Jews (Acts VII:58), this can only be regarded as an unlawful act on their part, or as an outbreak of passion and violence.

Both Pharisees and Sadducees were represented in the Sanhedrin (Acts 23:1). Previous to the days of Herod the Pharisees had the advantage of greater numbers and as a matter of fact possessed greater influence. In the reign of Herod men were displaced and appointed at his will. The Sadducees were not sticklers for religion and pandered to his worldliness. However, during Herod's reign, the Sadducees increased in power in the Sanhedrin. The fact that the most distinguished members of this body, the priests, together with the superior wealth of the Sadducees, enhanced influence in the National High Council.

Reunited by the Earthquake.

It is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.

Francisco, April 25. The quake separated many couples, remained at least one. Mrs. Frank of this city, obtained Judge Kerrigan, on March 24, a temporary decree of divorce from Frank. The terrors of the earthquake brought them together. This morning they sought out Kerrigan and asked him to re-unite them. A stroke of the pen, the old bond as good as new. The couple, after kissing in the room, locked arms and went to bed.

dispatch from London, England states that the Britishers were badly beaten by the San Francisco fire-works. The story goes that the London Underwriters were carrying $250,000,000 on property in the burned city. If this be true it ought to relieve our home companies to a very great extent.

Senator McCreary, in an interview in Louisville a few days ago, made known his intention to be a candidate to succeed himself in the U. S. Senate two years hence. He will doubtless have as his competitor Gov. Beckham. This will precipitate a lively campaign, with the "Old Guard" arrayed against the "Youngsters."

The situation at San Francisco is greatly improved. There is water, provisions, clothing and shelter in abundance for all those remaining on the site of the ill-fated city. It is stated but a few thousand of that mighty host thrown penniless on the world at a moment's notice still linger around the scenes of their former grandeur and present poverty, but the work of reconstruction has already been marked out, and ere many weeks thousands of workmen will be busily engaged in the construction of a grander and yet more beautiful city at the entrance to the Golden Gate, with material gathered from the four quarters of the globe.

One of the amusing sights of the world is the spectacle of a man who is trying to get something for nothing, dictating with a man who is trying to give nothing for something.

Insurance Agency
Is All Right.

Below we give extracts from letters received from our Companies which show that all San Francisco claims will be paid promptly, leaving sufficient surplus to guarantee absolute protection to every policy-holder. This demonstrates that our Companies are conflagration proof.

The Home Insurance Co., of New York.

"If newspaper reports are correct, the Home's loss will not exceed Two Million Dollars, and after paying claims upon us the surplus remaining will be upwards of Seven Million Dollars. We shall begin adjusting and paying claims as soon as our men can reach the city, and as in other similar cases, notably Chicago, Boston and Baltimore, the Home policies will be worth one hundred cents on the dollar."

"E. G. SNOW, President."

New York Underwriters Agency.

"The New York Underwriters Agency and the interests with which it is allied, doing by far the largest fire insurance business in the United States, will naturally expect to take a leading position in the loss list at San Francisco. With financial backing—ample beyond question—for all emergencies, the New York Underwriters Agency, following unchanged its past methods, will continue to afford its agents unexcelled facilities for the care of their desirable business."

"A. & J. H. STODDART, Gen. Agts."

The Aetna Insurance Co.

"After paying all San Francisco losses in full, based upon a liberal estimate of our total liability in that city, this Company will still have its capital unimpaired and a large surplus."

"WM. B. CLARK, President."

The Old Insurance Co. of North America.

"Chicago 1871, Boston 1872, Baltimore 1894 and San Francisco 1906, in each case
I was able to say: 'The Old Ship was in the thickest of the battle, was hit many times but her armor was not pierced, nor was a single gun dismounted.'

"J. F. DOWNING, General Agent."

"Have already subscribed and paid Five Thousand Dollars for sufferers and will pay CHARLES PLATT, President."

The Phoenix Insurance Co. of Hartford.

"The Phoenix is abundantly able to meet all its obligations in the afflicted locality and to apply protection and safeguard its large interests elsewhere."

Hanover Fire Insurance Co. of New York.

"Our home office advises us that the Company will meet its obligations the same as it has in all conflagrations in the past."

CHAS. W. HIGLEY, General Agent."

ECHOES FROM THE CITY OF HORRORS

Some Interesting Details of the Great
San Francisco Conflagration.

The Press has been favored with files of Los Angeles, Cala., papers, from which we glean some interesting details of the calamity which has befallen the entire State of California, which we give below:

Los Angeles, April 20.—A State Senator gives the following account of his experience and escape:

I woke up and the next thing I knew was the shock roll and roar of the earthquake.

I lay in bed; the bed was rocking every way, like an upper berth in the Owl on a fast run. Things began to drop. I had to hang on to keep in bed. The plaster and the wall began to drop; I pulled the cover over my head to protect myself from the plaster and I wondered if the rest of the world had gone.

Then the quake stopped, the room was as dark as pitch; I got up and felt around; the ceiling of my room had fallen but had been stopped by the north wall, making a tent-like shelter over my bed. Finally a crack above me showed daylight, then I took hope.

I heard Dan Childs calling for help in the next room. I hammered on wall, I looked for my jack knife to cut my way out but my pants were tired down by the delirium.

Then I heard the rescuers overhead with axes and saws.

"Who's there? Is anybody there?" they shouted.

"Here I am, can you see me thro' the crack," I cried.

Then they saw me and I was soon released.

Mrs. Frank Hicks, of Los Angeles tells her experience as follows:

It was terrible, too terrible to describe. We were all on the eighth floor of the St. Francis hotel, all of our apartments adjoining. I was awakened by a terrible shaking of the building and jumped out of bed, and tried to go to mother's room but could not stand. The hotel building swayed just like a ship in a storm, and it seemed to me that it tipped over so far at times that it could never be straight again.

After the shock was over I went to mother's room. We went to the window and looked out across the square. The scene was horrible. Big buildings were in ruins, some completely demolished and others standing with cracks in the wall, tottering ready to fall.

As we were standing in the entire city seemed to catch fire in all directions and as far as the eye could see the great tongues of flame shot into the sky. Our building, Marion street, across from the Opera House, was the first to burn as we were we stood on the roof and in less time than it took the entire part of the city and the ferry was a beautiful yet terrible sight.

We remained in the hotel all day and at that time I waited in getting a car or automobile. We then drove to the home of a friend away. When we reached the house in ruins we went to the home of a friend who remained there till we were rescued by fire. We finally reached the residence of Mr. Knob Hill.

The floor that night was hot, and after seeing my brother manage to get a hardtack box full of sardines and beans we made beds on the floor to sleep. We had a room that we found hundreds of fires burning as day, but it was a steady, glowing glow which filled us with fear. Words

Pale, Thin, Nervous?

Then your blood must be in a very bad condition. You certainly know what to take, then take it—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. If you doubt, then consult your doctor. We know what he will say about this grand old family medicine. Sold for over 60 years.

This is the first question your doctor would ask. "Are your bowels regular?" He knows that daily action of the bowels is absolutely necessary. Keep your liver active and your bowels regular by taking laxative doses of Ayer's Pills.

some things, three pairs of shoes, I believe. I put the shoes in a grip and brought them along. My diamonds and money I left in the hotel. But we all did that. No one at such a time cares for their effects. We expected death at any moment and were surprised that it did not come. Can you wonder that I saved the shoes instead of the most valued of my possessions.

I have a lot in San Francisco and was offered $75,000 for it the day before the earthquake and I refused it, as I had intended erecting a large office building on it myself. Now I suppose it is worthless but that does not worry me. I would be willing to forget the lot and all if I could only forget the terrible scenes that I was forced to witness during our many attempts to escape to a place of safety.

That night was awful, we could hear cries of the suffering people and the crash of falling buildings, all night long. Van Ness avenue was crowded from side to side with people—mothers carrying babies men and women packing on their backs what they had managed to save. Where all those people found food and shelter I can not imagine. We had no water to drink and almost died of thirst.

The Los Angeles Times says:

What must follow is a fearful amount of sickness and suffering among the homeless thousands of San Francisco.

The lack of water and sewage, of suitable food and shelter, of sanitary conveniences and of ordinary comforts must cause extraordinary distress, especially among the women and children, the delicate and infirm, the sickly and the aged.

Not as Rich as Rockefeller.

If you had all the wealth of Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, you could not buy a better medicine for bowel complaints than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea

Remedy. The most eminent physician can not prescribe a better preparation for colic and diarrhoea, both for children and adults. The uniform success of this remedy has shown it to be superior to all others. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened, is pleasant to take.

Every family should be supplied with it. Sold by Woods & Orme, the Gulfport, Miss., April 20, 1906.—Dear Editor—I got on a little whiz on Wednesday last, not brought on by whisky, but desire to see the gulf and a ship and get down close to the reunion at New Orleans. I reached here last night about 10 o'clock and walked out in the sea breeze this morning for the first time, and I find it so far to be pleasant and refreshing. Steady, but free from the aggravating twist often found in the wind in Kentucky. I have seen today ships from England, Holland and other nations. They are here for lumber and they are getting it. They can pick up a piece of timber 16 inches square 30 foot long from the ear and put it in the hull of the ship in two minutes or on an average of two trips in five minutes. One English vessel is loaded and ready to leave and I seen the jackies up among the lines, and when I say up I mean up, but whether they were trying to get to the lines untangled or tangle them worse I could not tell.

The Southern hotel on the beach is the finest building I ever saw for a hotel and the profusion of flowers and shrubbery around it is beautiful. I see on the market today early potatoes, cucumbers, strawberries, etc. Please change my address from Carthage, Miss., to Gulf Port, Miss.

If I don't conclude to cross the big pond and yellow jack will let me alone I may stay here some time. They have yellow fever now in New Orleans, but I don't think it will spread much before July, but I don't know about that. I will leave the yellow fever in care of the doctors, whom I believe lay it all on the female "skater," but I can't tell one from the other. Come to the reunion any way. J. H. AINSWORTH

Criminal Assault.

Hopkinsville, Ky., April 27.—Miss Blanche A. Smith, an orphan, aged twenty years, who resides with the family of James Williams, near Bainbridge in this county, came to town this morning and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Enoch Sims, a negro who lives near her home, charging him with criminal assault.

She says she was getting dinner when the negro entered the kitchen, locked the door and assaulted her. He made his escape and she rang the farm bell and a posse was organized and searched for him last night, and succeeded in locating him in hiding.

Sheriff Smith has gone to that locality twenty miles from town to make the arrest.

reunite them. A stroke of the pen made the old bond as good as new and the couple, after kissing in the court room, locked arms and went away smiling.
